The Ipsum CAPTCHA Visa Protocol

The Ministry of Placeholder Citizenship introduces Form A22-B: Silence is Louder than Sound™, the centerpiece of the Ipsum CAPTCHA Visa Protocol.

To qualify for linguistic clearance, applicants must complete multiple-choice evaluations written entirely in Lorem ipsum. Real language is prohibited. Emotional resonance is penalized. Meaning is suspicious.
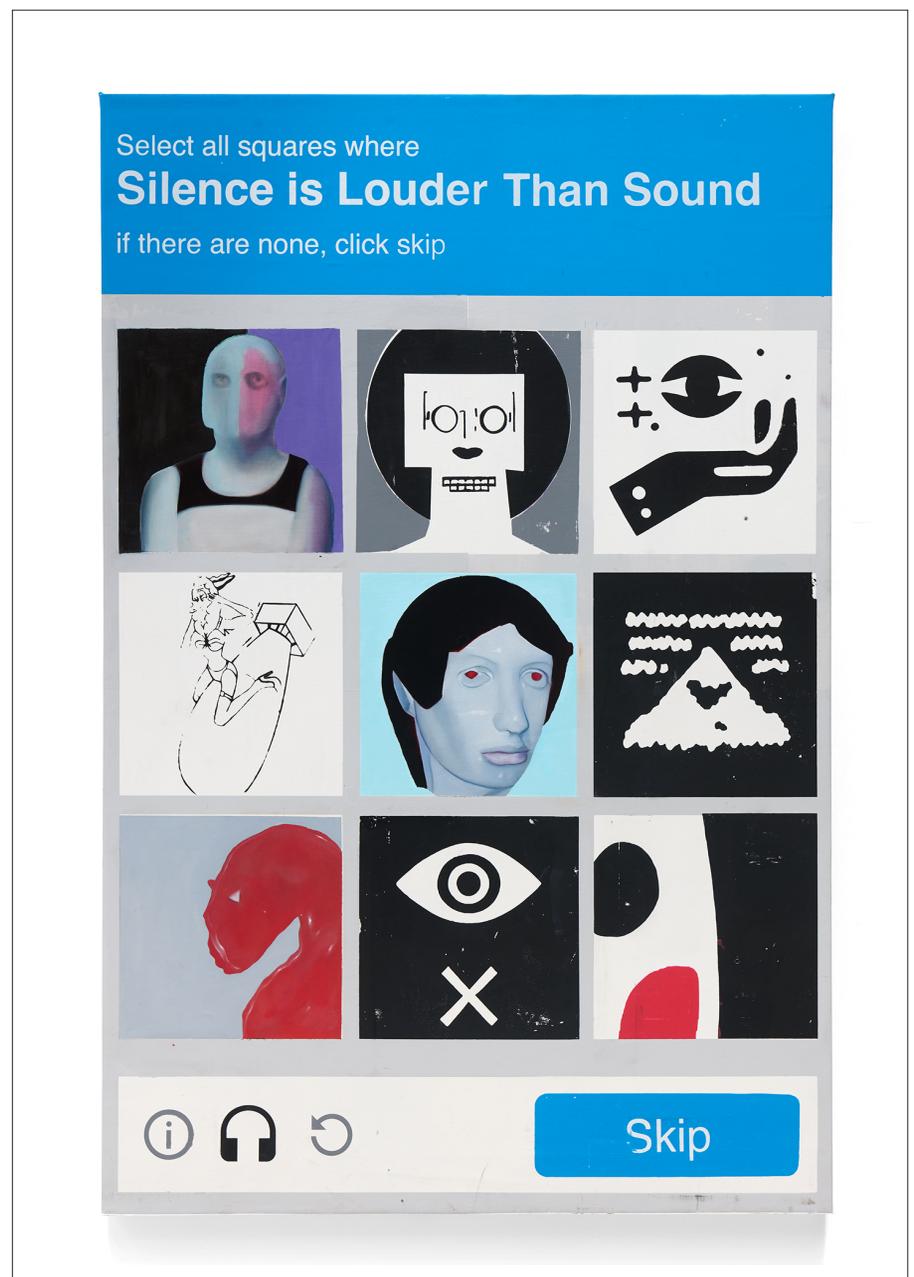

Citizenship applicants are instructed to identify the most meaningless phrase, mistrust glyphs, and confirm their detachment from metaphor. Each question is followed by an impossible CAPTCHA prompt:

"Select all squares where silence is louder than sound."

"Click each image containing non-expressive grammar."

"Identify the comma that feels ideologically intrusive."

Failure to comply—whether through accidental coherence, hesitation over punctuation, or visible intent —is grounds for immediate deportation or reassignment to the Semantic Re-Verification Annex.

Officials assure the public that true citizens possess an innate instinct for authentic gibberish.

Those fluent in conceptual nonsense are fast-tracked to elite status, their devotion to meaningless clarity celebrated by the Ministry. Their reward: continued permission to exist as syntactic ghosts within the neutralized state.
